

Students celebrating an International Party

Original dishes from India, Jordan, Pakistan and Thailand were offered

21.12.2015 | Aalen University offers a well-recognized international Master program in Polymer Technology PTC since more than ten years. Polymer Technology has the biggest group of international students in Aalen University from around the globe. More than 50 students from the around the world visit Aalen university every year as prospective master graduates.

In order to bring the international community of Aalen University closer among themselves and to facilitate better integration with the local community, the K-International (Kunststoff-International) invited to a lunch party, which was organized by the students of the master course – Polymer Technology PTC. It took place for the first time on the 17th of December 2015 at the main campus of Aalen University. It involved cuisines from different countries like India, Iran, Jordan, Pakistan and Thailand to name a few. More than 150 guests from the various departments of the university participated in the event.

Prof. Dr. Achim Frick, the head of the master course, felt that it was nice to bring together the international student community and the relevant persons from the university. Vibunanthan Muralidharan, research assistant, shared the responsibility together with the students in organizing the event and making it a successful and unforgettable get-together. He also hopes that this event may continue in the future time every semester to strengthen the integration of the international students at Aalen University.

Further information about the event are shared in the Facebook group – PTC Polymer Technology. (<https://www.facebook.com/PolymerTechnologyAalen>)