

Information on the denial statute of Aalen University

Denial of admission if the claim to examination in the same programme was waived

Sec. 1 para 1 clause 1

Admission to a programme of Aalen University must be denied if a previous admission to the same programme at an advanced technical college has been waived because an examination was finally failed or a claim to examination does not exist any more.

If you have studied the same programme and the claim to examination is still valid, please, present a clearance certificate of your present institution before the application deadline. After the clearance certificate has been submitted, you will be officially considered in the selection procedure.

Denial of admission if the claim to examination in a programme of essentially the same content was waived

Sec. 1 para 1 clause 1 and 2

Admission to studies in Aalen University must also be denied if any former admission to an advanced technical college has been waived because an examination was finally failed or if there is no claim to examination in a programme of essentially the same content up to the first or intermediate examination or the whole programme. Equivalence of the programmes is always assumed if the name of the programme agrees in its main subject; subordinated specialisation or extension is irrelevant.

If an admission application matches the above-mentioned conditions, the application shall be forwarded to the programme for evaluation. A proper decision shall be made there.
